A quarrel over a 92 bottle of booting wine resulted in the killing of Arthur Pullen, 30, today, as he fled from the home of Fred Habet, his host in Chicago. Arrested, he was charged with the murder of Pullen, who was killed by a shot.

Former Governor Gifford Pinchot, slain Pullen with a shotgun, shot of Pennsylvania is "undecided" as to seeking the Republican senatorial nomination against Senator David A. Reed although petitions placing him in nomination are being circulated throughout the keystone state, Pinchot said today.

Plans are disclosed for a transatlantic flight to Stockholm, Sweden, to be sponsored possibly, by the Chicago Geographical Society. The trip will begin next June. The purpose is to determine to what extent an arctic air route to Europe is feasible.

Second Trial Of Hickman Figured To Win Postponement

(By Universal Service)
LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—William Edward Hickman, who will be sentenced tomorrow for the kidnapping and slaying of 12-year-old Marion Parker, may go to trial Wednesday on the charges of killing C. Ivy Toma, Los Angeles druggist, in a holdup on Christmas Eve, 1926.

Hickman's attorneys previously had indicated they would seek a continuance in the second murder charge. Today, however, IR. Cantillon, defense attorney, said he believed no delay would be asked when the case is called before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy.

TOO ATTACK LAW

This tentative switch in plans indicates that the defense, in its attempt to save Hickman from the gallows, will rely mainly on an attack on the constitutionality of the state's new insanity law.

Hickman, whom a jury last week found to be sane at the time of the kidnapping and killing of the Parker girl, will be sentenced by Judge J. J. Trabucco tomorrow morning. It is believed practically certain that the court will deny the defense motion for a new trial, and inflict a death sentence.

FLIGHT ENDS ONE YEAR TRIP OF AIR HERO

(By Universal Service)
ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh just at five o'clock tonight, celebrated his departure from the Air Mail service one year ago today by swooping down from a dull heaven to relieve the slight anxiety his friends and admirers had begun to evince at his delay in completing his non-stop hop from Havana to St. Louis.

"HEAVY" WEATHER

"My trip was uneventful all the way up," Lindbergh said, as he stepped from the plane. "The weather was heavy all the way. I flew from Cuba direct to Key West and then took a direct course for St. Louis."

PEFFECT LANDING

Lindbergh circled the field four times before landing and the third time he came down close, evidently looking the field over. The fourth time he circled he made a perfect landing in front of the Administration building and taxied up to the hangar. He topped in front of the hangar, stepped out and posed for cameramen and photographers and talked to J. F. Mahoney the man who manfactured the plane.

Lindbergh also talked to Walter Noun, acting mayor. The flying colonel was taken soon after his arrival to the home of Harry H. Knight, broker here who was one of his chief backers for the New York-to-Paris flight.

The young man who returned here tonight after completing a tour that took him over a good portion of the world looked a bit older than the man who made his last air mail trip last February 13th, but he still retains the buoyant youthfulness that characterized him then.

GREENS OLD FRIENDS

He greeted old companions with their nicknames.

Dedication Of School Held In San Pablo

Formal dedication of the San Pablo grammar school with the Native Sons of the Golden West in charge of the ceremonies was held at the new building, under the chairmanship of A. E. Palmer, principal of the school, Sunday afternoon.

Walter T. Helms, superintendent of schools in the Richmond district, recalled the past history of the site as he has known it for the past 28 years. After receiving his teacher's credentials at the University of California he was called to the old San Pablo school building just discarded to assist in dedicating the then new school and later to serve as a teacher.

At the time of the building of the old school there was much criticism at having it so far out of town. During the four years that Helms was in that district, a school at Stege and Point Richmond were opened.

Addresses by County Superintendent of Schools William H. Hanlon and Charles A. Thompson, grand president of the lodge dealt with loyalty and patriotism. James F. Hoey, spoke in place of Junior past grand president, Hillard E. Welch, and told of the development of the schools of California as they are mentioned by Arthur Brisbane.

MIRACLE WORKERS

The Federal Oil Conservation Board will draft a bill for introduction in congress, which it says will be designed to limit the production of the oil and stop the waste of oil and gas.

When William Penn was in the real estate business in Pennsylvania 250 years ago there was supposed to be enough timber in his plantations to take care of all of the demands that would ever come from the Eastern half of the United States. Where's the lumber today?

Over 90 per cent of the heat units of coal have been wasted out of the grand total of all production of coal that has been taken out of the soil since the first pick and shovel was lowered by a white man in American dirt.

Proceedings before the United States Senate and the district courts of Washington seem to confirm the idea quite popular among newspaper readers throughout the United States that what is needed most in regulating the oil industry, are real jail sentences.

AIR CONGESTION

Radio experts declare that the air is congested. Too many people making disturbances and sounds. The Radio Commission at Washington has been told that there is a preponderance of chain stations that monopolize the air and shut out diverse selections of programs.

It doesn't seem to effect the situation, whether the so-called monopoly takes all the air or whether the small broadcasters all turn loose at one time. In either case, says a very learned Texas Congressman "there is something wrong somewhere." That is about as near to an answer and a solution as the Radio Commission has been able to get up to date.

TICK IS AN ECONOMIC VAMPIRE

The cattle-fever tick that ravages the cattle industry in the South was pictured as an economic vampire at the Southern Livestock Association meeting at Memphis a few days ago. An official appraisal of the damage that ticks inflict on the cattle industry in 225 infested Southern counties shows that the average loss per county is $53,377. And, for $20,000 all the ticks can be eradicated from an entire county, thus clearing up a balance of more than $33,000 in one annual operation.

In talking of disarmament European nations say that they first want guarantee of safety. But if everybody disarms and disarmament will end warfare, as the pacifists claim, what is the need for guarantee of safety?

The old-fashioned boy of eight who believed in Santa Claus has grown up and now has a son of the same age who can tell you Babe Ruth's batting average and who knows he could fly almost as well as Lindy if he had the chance.

If Stranger Hands Rear Child She'll Not Be Pal

DEAR MME. HALL DEANE: I have decided to ask your advice about the following problem. We have a very fine looking woman looking after our little daughter. My husband's business keeps him away from home a great part of the time, so naturally I busy myself with other affairs and several times I have considered taking a position. My mother, who is very old fashioned argues that I should not leave the care of my little girl entirely to strangers, but I feel that since she is in such competent hands, I should be free to do as I please. I am sure my child is perfectly safe in the hands of this woman. What do you think?

Certainly you have a right to do as you please, and I am sure that there are a great many young mothers who share your ideas. On the other hand, since you have asked for my personal opinion—here goes.

In the first place I feel that you are cheating yourself of a wonderful experience in life, and there can hardly be a full understanding between you and your daughter as she grows older. If you expect her to look upon you as a pal and confidante during the rather difficult "growing up" period, the time to win her love and confidence is now. It is the easiest matter in the world for kiddies to grow away from their parents, and once they are gone there's so little one can do to bring them back. It is quite true that a competent and refined woman may teach your little one the beginnings of good manners, but, in my opinion, parents should never turn the training and teaching of their kiddies entirely over to others, unless circumstances make such a course imperative. Not only is it unfair to the child, but it is also most unfair to the parent.

Discipline should begin as soon as a child is able to understand not only to make the little one loving, lovable and well-mannered, but to save it from the mental and physical blows which a thoughtless world will heap upon the hands of a spoiled child. And this discipline should, if possible, come from the parents.

Teach your girl to confide in you and be patient and fair with her. Take time to answer her questions and teach her to feel that she can come to you at all times and be understood. All comradeship between you and your little daughter will hardly be possible if you place her entirely in the care of another.

HOMESPUN YARN

Aunt Ada's axioms: The highest duty is to give pleasure to others.

A hint for stout persons: Do not wear tight clothes; they emphasize the curves of the figure. Two lightweight garments—a coat and sweater, for example—are often warmer than one heavy garment.

A muslin cover for the ironing board could be cut six inches longer and four inches wider than the board.

Mold on the surface of ham or bacon may be removed by rubbing the meat with a cloth dampened with lard or sweet oil.

When hanging very fine materials on the line to dry, protect them from tearing by fastening an extra cloth under the clothespins. This is especially useful in winter when they freeze and tear easily.

FROCKS FOR EXACTING TASTES

Revealing the chic that Paris can combine with simplicity, the frock to the left elects to express itself in tub crepe in one of the pastel shades. The round two-piece collar and short kimono sleeves render it both youthful and becoming. Turn-back cuffs finish the sleeves, while the skirt features shirring at the sides. The embroidery motif is worked in darning and outline stitches. Medium size requires 3 1/2 yards 36-inch material. The novelty cottons of sports weaves are ideal for the development of the second frock, which is a sturdy model. Pointed patch pockets outlined with braid in solid color, a belt to harmonize with the braid, and a shaggy shake of ribbon for the shoulder complete the decorative scheme of the design, which requires, for the medium size, 3 1/2 yards 36-inch material, with 3/4 yards braid.

First Model: Pictorial Review Printed Pattern No. 3908. Sizes 14 to 18 years and 34 to 42 bust, 45 cents. Embroidery No. 13150, blue or yellow, 48 cents.

Second Model: Printed Pattern No. 3901. Sizes 34 to 44 bust and 14 to 18 years, 48 cents.

How To EARN Money at Home.

By Sara Spence

THE SITZ BATH: I find that many people are not acquainted with the sitz bath. Some even confuse it with the enema. The sitz bath is helpful in so many abnormal conditions that every one should know about it.

This is a sitting bath covering the hips and lower abdomen up to the navel. The legs, arms and upper parts of the body are not included except that it may be well to keep the feet in hot water when the patient is quite weak. Special tubs can be obtained for taking the sitz baths but they are not absolutely necessary. When a bath of only one temperature is to be taken an ordinary bath tub or a galvanic iron wash tub may be used. When employing the bath tub the feet are placed on the slanting end or one can sit sideways with the legs over the edge of the tub. When water of two different temperatures is to be employed it is well to have two tubs. The wash tub may be used for the second one, or two such tubs may be used if no regular bath tub is available. If the feet need to be included a small foot tub can be used. If it is impossible to arrange for two tubs the cold water application may be made with a sponge or a hand bath spray. The single sitz bath may be taken at any temperature from ice cold through cold, cool, neutral and warm up to very hot. The length of the bath depends upon the effect desired.

The sitz bath most frequently employed is the alternate hot and cold. This is generally taken three minutes in the hot and one in the cold, making two changes. Always start with the hot and finish with the cold. Changes should be made quickly. On entering the hot water the second time more hot should be added so as to restore the original temperature.

My little girl has adenoids, but her tonsils seem normal. Is it necessary to remove them when the adenoids are taken out?

WORRIED MOTHER.

In all probability there is no particular necessity for removing the adenoids or tonsils, especially the latter. Natural methods of treatment must be used to remove the causes of the trouble, and when this is done, the operation will probably be found unnecessary. A fairly strict diet together with fresh air and day and night outdoor play and all general health building measures will be required. If the adenoids are removed by operation the tonsils should be allowed to remain.

Glorify Your Type With Face Powder Correctly Put On

It is the absolute law of smart makeup that the shade of your face powder must exactly match your skin. In Paris, no really chic woman would think of using a different tone. And that, after all, has the soundest artistic basis. Fortunately, the day that tolerated exaggerated makeup—the clown face of red and white, or cetera—is very much gone—and in its stead a sophisticated naturalness reigns. A naturalness that subtly accents its own quality.

It was Coty, the great Parisian perfumer, who created and developed this true art of beauty. Realizing with subtle French understanding, that individuality is the keynote of each woman's charm, and that there are so many lovely distinctive shades of complexion, he decided that each must have its due, its own tone of powder—so the world-famous Coty Face Powders were from the beginning made, not in a few hit-or-miss shades, but exquisitely graduated in nine true flesh tones. Choose With Care.

One can easily see, with a skin of ivory tone, how a rosy powder would throw out the whole harmony of flesh and eyes and hair, destroying the delicate nuances of color, which most women hardly realize they possess. Coty's Rachel No. 1 and 2 are the shades for this type. Then again, with a skin that is tinged with pink, an ivory or ocre shaded powder would completely dull its soft, youthful radiance. Here Coty's Rosa No. 1 or 2 or Natural should be used. And likewise with skins whose charm is pallor—they must be matched with greatest care. A dark ivory toned powder (ocre or Rachel No. 3) for the olive (blond) for the gardenia toned. Don't make the mistake that any near tone will do—it probably will look nice, nicer than no powder at all, but will not bring out the greatest loveliness of your face with an effect of exquisite, artistic naturalness—and that is what we all want.

For evening some women find it most effective to use the lighter shade of the same tone for the reason that the preponderance of yellow rays in almost all artificial light has the effect of dulling the coloring a little. That is why you can use so much more makeup at night than in the daytime. That, too, is why the Coty Mauve Powder is so exquisite under electric light, giving the neck and shoulders a soft, pearly luster. If a woman uses Rachel No. 2 in the day, while ocre would find Rachel No. 1 at night. Likewise with the Rosa No. 2 and No. 1. If she uses Rachel No. 1 in the day, then she should the Coty Mauve Powder for evening light with the same powder, then smooth over it a light touch of Blanc powder. Rose No. 1 would use Natural, uses Rachel No. 2 in the day, while ocre would find Rachel No. 1 at night.

"THE JAZZ SINGER," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. pictureization of this novel. It is based upon the play by Sampson Raphaelson.

SYNOPSIS

Center Robinson has trained his son, Jackie, to sing the Hebrew songs of the Synagogue. On the Eve of the Day of Atonement he finds Jackie singing ragtime in a "beer garden." He whips the child and Jackie runs away ten years elope. Jackie, now Jack Robin, a jazz singer, down on his luck, meets Mary Dale, a dancer, who obtains a part for him in her vaudeville act. Back in the New York ghetto the Center still resents his son, refusing to read his letters, but his wife deprecates the loss of their only child. While in a Chicago theatre—

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

Behind the silver curtain stage hands worked in feverish activity setting up the next scene. Back-grounded by tall, white-brick walls that, like the tower of Babel, rose toward a sky domed by inch-wide iron slats; clouded by painted canvases swinging from long ropes; starred by pendulous sandbags, these figures of earth moved silently with the precision of a Ballet Mechanique. In the semi-darkness long shadows wavered amid the gaudy lines, until the air was filled with writhing undulations as ephemeral as the shadows of the Brooklyn Bridge seen of a misty evening.

As the curtain fell the house orchestra jangled into a roving air. The audience still called, tip-wagging the curtain and Mary Dale took her bow, gathering the lavender rain-spray of tinsel closely about her. As she bowed the crowd saw standing in the wings the black face and great, painted lips of Jack Robin. With his white-cotton gloved hands he, too, was showering his adulation. Again and again the house lights went up and down on the curtain calls.

As she took another bow Mary turned in the wings to face Jack Robin. They smiled, gazed into each other's eyes. A strange contrast they made, these two. The blonde coloring of the girl, accentuated by the dark mascara on her eyes and the lavender of her costume that reflected some of its light on her shapely arms and neck. The black oiliness of the negro make-up on the boy's face; the little white line revealing the skin of the forehead where, on the stage, the curly black wig had covered it. But so accustomed were they to seeing each other in this guise of the theatre that the sight did not strike them as at all incongruous.

"I don't know what I'd do, Jack, if it wasn't for the encouragement you give me," Mary laughed up at the black face before her, a little teasing, a little provocative.

"But I love to watch you dance," Jack attempted to explain his presence in the wings, realizing that Mary was laughing at him.

"Take your curtain," a stage hand was calling to Mary, as he raised up in answer to the applause that was still to be heard from out front. Mary ran on again, bowed, and returned, as the curtain fell.

"Well, it's something to know that someone appreciates your work," Mary resumed the conversation where they had left off. But her words embarrassed Jack not a little. During the time they had been traveling together he had never once forced his attention on the girl. They had been good companions in fair weather and foul. Mary appreciated Jack's reserve, but she knew, too, with the innate consciousness of every woman, that it was her own attitude that had helped to further this feeling of comradeship without turning it into a sentimental affair. And it was for this reason that she held at ways to a lighter vein of talk, excepting during those times when each discussed his work.

Mary appreciated Jack's reserve, but she knew, too, with the innate consciousness of every woman, that it was her own attitude that had helped to further this feeling of comradeship without turning it into a sentimental affair. And it was for this reason that she held at ways to a lighter vein of talk, excepting during those times when each discussed his work.

"But you know I'm just crazy about—about your act," Jack flashed off his sentence awkwardly. But it was plainly evident from the tender glow in his eyes and the slight catch in his voice that he had meant something quite different.

Mary smiled, and pushed Jack around towards the dressing rooms. "Hurry up and dress," she told him, opening her own door. "I've got something to show you as soon as I get out of this make-up."

Jack hurried off to change, but not before several of the chorus girls wandering their way up the circular iron staircase to the dressing rooms on the balcony had noticed the two together and had caught Jack's frank avowal of interest in Mary. They entered the dressing room and began unhooking their bodies and slipping out of their costumes.

"Say, he sure is goofy about her," nodded a short, plump brunette who had recently joined the show. "Listen, babe, we got that before Noah was a pup" put in a tall, red-haired girl who affected a pale make-up. He's been cheering from the side lines ever since we left "Frisco."

"Ta-dee-dee . . . Ta-dee-dee," the plump brunette hummed the opening bars of the Wedding March.

"Aw, he ain't got a chance," interposed a fuzzy-haired peroxide blonde, carefully drawing on a pair of sheer silk stockings.

"I should tell the world not," the red-haired girl defended herself. "No 'mammy' singer for Mary. She's got ideas, she has."

"Hey, what'd ya mean, ya bum?" a slim girl turned to appraise the speaker, the cold cream still thick on her face and a sticky make-up cloth in hand. "No 'mammy' singer for Mary. She's got ideas, she has."

"O, shut up, nobody's picking on you," the red-haired girl defended herself. "I'll say what I please."

"Not about Mary, you won't. Just because she's got enough brains to want to get on, you dums give her the raspberry. You make me tired!"

"Pipe down, you two," screamed the peroxide blonde, "and give me a chance at that rag." She snatched the make-up cloth from the slim girl. And Mary and Jack were forgotten for the moment.

Downstairs Jack was sitting before his dressing table creaming his face and removing the grease paint. Beside him, energetically rubbing his chubby features, sat Buster Billings, who, as he hoped, caught up with the show, and because of their old friendship the two were still dressing together and sharing the same mirror. Jack was dressing forcefully of Mary. After awhile he turned on his chair and looked at his friend.

"I wonder what it was Mary had to show me, Buster," he questioned thoughtfully.

"Can't imagine. Maybe it's an engagement ring," Buster teased. Jack's heavy-lidded eyes were fixed on an entire second and then leaped frantically into his mouth. Then he caught the levity in Buster's wide grin and he smiled, but it was not a particularly successful attempt at merriment.

"Oh, it could hardly be that. Not that I'd blame anybody for being— for falling—" Jack floundered helplessly. "But you know what I mean, Buster. But Mary's so interested in her work, and— and He looked frankly at his friend for help and assurance.

"Aw, I was only jokin', Jack," Buster rose to hang up his costume. He came and laid a friendly arm across the singer's shoulder. "But you'd better forget her, kid. She's wrapped up in her career," you said it. An' you got a change for Broadway yourself if you keep solin'."

Jack sighed and turned away. He felt that what Buster had said was true—still, that didn't keep him from dreaming his dreams; it didn't keep the ache out of his heart; it couldn't paralyze those sharp little needles that ran up and down his spine each time he looked at Mary. He changed from his ludicrous costume into a street suit.

"I'm just going to see Mary for a few minutes, Buster. I'll be right back," he called, closing the dressing room door.

He walked along the passage and knocked at the door of dressing room Number One.

"Mary," he called, "it's Jack."

"Just a minute," Mary called, opening the door and turning around to adjust her hat before the mirror. "Come on in."

Jack entered a little fearful of what he might be going to hear. Mary yet anxious to hear it, he might relieve himself of his earlier Mary's eyes were shining, and she was humming a little tune.

"Look, Jack. Read that!" She picked up a telegram from her dress and handed it to him. It was for this reason that she held at ways to a lighter vein of talk, excepting during those times when each discussed his work.

Then his eyes, too, brightened. (To be continued)

Novel Party Staged By Young People Of Community M. E.

A Leap Year jumping-room scene staged by the feminine members and a scene depicting the "great open spaces" with cacti, a campfire, with cowboys and miners "sitting round" staged by the boys were the features on the program which held the greatest interest for those present at the enjoyable Valentine party given by the Epworth League of the Community Methodist church at the home of Mrs. George W. Forman, 609 Twenty-first street.

A deal of rivalry existed between the two groups and much preparation was made for each of the skits presented. The boys did some real detective work previous to the presentation of their offering. They found which state each of the young ladies came from and gave reminiscences around the campfire about experiences which they had had in these different states. To make the scene more realistic the distant "tooting" of a train was heard and finally a cleverly made miniature train was exposed to the view of the delighted audience.

The Leap Year scene caused much merriment among the on-lookers. Several of the boys were dressed in boys' attire and each was possessed with a number of addresses (as is the way with these modern girls) and when she received a proposal from one and another made known his presence at the door it was necessary to make a piece of furniture of the former so that it would be possible to entertain the proposal of the newcomer.

Decorations in keeping with St. Valentine's day adorned the rooms and 12 streamers in Valentine colors hung from the ceiling. Six young couples grasped these streamers and the one found in possession of the other end of the streamer was the partner in the heart hunting game which followed.

Hot chocolate, cakes, cookies and candies were served to the young people at the close of the evening's festivities.

An unusually interesting and laugh provoking account of the histories of Yuba City in Sutter county and Marysville in Yuba county were given by Mrs. Schnabel, a native daughter. After this narrative a skit was staged by six girls, three dressed in boys costumes, who sang, "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden," under the catchy title "Floradora Sextet."

JAMES CRUZE PRODUCTION AT THE CALIFORNIA

That much overworked adjective "gigantic" may very properly be employed to describe "Old Ironsides," the new Paramount spectacle produced by James Cruze and adapted from Laurence Stallings' original story by Harry Carter and Walter Woods, which opened a two day run at the California Theatre last night.

It is doubtful if even Mr. Cruze himself realized what a tremendous impression the picture would make upon the minds of the public. It is one of the first real American epics of the silent drama. Other productions have made us see parts of United States history but this, with its hard bitten Yankee tars and dauntless fighting men, makes one feel the tremendous bravery and courage of our forefathers.

Although "Old Ironsides" is for the most part spectacular and gripping, the love interest is unusually strong. It is contained in a romantic and wholesome story between Esther Ralston and Charles Farrell which stands out like a diamond mounted in a setting of hand-hammered gold.

Aside from the colorful love episodes, there are any number of other scenes done with a sincerity which is seldom seen. One of the most remarkable is the parting of the players at the end when Esther Ralston, Wallace Beery, Charles Farrell and George Bancroft, leave him to continue their journey to the China Seas aboard the brig, "Esmeralda."

Much praise is due all those who participated in the production but the major portion goes to James Cruze, that mighty director who also gave us "The Covered Wagon." Due to his efforts the photoplay has not one lagging moment.

Other features on the same program include an old time movie starring Bill Hart in "The Rough Neck." This is Thomas A. Edison Week.

'English Singers' To Appear In Oakland Song Recital

Something new in music is a welcome announcement. For two years Westerners have been reading of the continued triumphs and remarkable successes of the "English Singers" of London, and now for the first time, this remarkable organization is scheduled to visit this section. There is no basis of comparison between these artists and others. Nothing can be compared to them because in nothing exists with which to do so. The incomparable madrigal art of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries is a thing of itself and the motets (sacred pieces used in the mass) ballets, folk songs and canzonets (secular pieces) which they sing are of the Elizabethan period, famed for its literary and musical culture. A profound impression is genuinely anticipated for the English Singers' recital. The organization will appear in Oakland on February 28, in the Auditorium Theatre, under the Seckels-Oppenheimer management.

ALL-STAR CAST IN UFA 'FAUST' AT RICHMOND

Society has always had a hand extended to greet and help a successful person—yet there is a stone in that hand for the transgressor. Pretty Marguerite, innocent and beloved by all in the town, finds a different welcome when her sin becomes known, in the newest UFA special, "Faust," now playing at the Richmond Theatre. The friends who hailed her now turn from her in scorn. Marguerite becomes an outcast, and finally is condemned to die at the stake. It is only when her over, Faust, returns that she is redeemed, and hand in hand they go to greet their Maker. "Faust" was directed by F. W. Murnau, who made "The Last Laugh." Emil Jannings is Mephisto, Camilla Horn portrays Marguerite, Costa Ekman plays the title role, and Yvette Guilbert, the distinguished French diva, appears as Martha. "Faust" is a Metro-Goldwyn Mayer release.

TESTIMONIALS TO BE GIVEN FAMOUS DIVA

At her farewell concert in the Auditorium Theatre on Wednesday evening, Oakland will pay a well-earned tribute to Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, beloved of the American opera and concert platform for 30 years.

The contralto's last recital will witness demonstrations of affection and esteem from the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, for whose benefit her last previous concert here was given; from the Chamber of Commerce, Women's City Club and the Forum Club.

From Oakland Post No. 5, of the American Legion, the singer will be presented with resolutions expressing appreciation for her service to the disabled veterans, a group of whom from Livermore Hospital will be the guests of their comrades.

Commendation of not only the artist, but also the women and mothers is made in resolutions passed by the Women's City Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the Forum Club, which will be presented to the singer during the concert by President Field, of the Chamber of Commerce.

The resolution passed by the Women's City Club reads as follows:

"Whereas, Mme. Schumann-Heink exemplifies a fine type of citizenship in the United States, and

"Whereas, she has represented true motherhood, not only to her own children but to the children of many nations, and

"Whereas, she is supreme in her contribution to the world of art in music and has given of herself freely to further the happiness of mankind the world over, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the Women's City Club of Oakland and East Bay take this method of expressing its appreciation for the contribution Mme. Schumann-Heink has made to the civic, domestic, and artistic civilization of the age; and further be it

"Resolved, that the Women's City Club of Oakland and East Bay extend to Mme. Schumann-Heink a cordial invitation to use the Women's City Club Building as her bay region home whenever she visits Northern California."

In her last audience, the noted singer will have seven guests of honor—her old friends residing in Oakland, Alameda, Berkeley and Richmond who heard her in the early days of her career. Dean of these old friends is Mrs. J. H. Crow, of No. 371 38th Street, Oakland, who heard her 48 years ago in Dresden, three years after the singer made her world debut.

Also in her audience will be twelve orphans from the American Legion Child Welfare Home, at No. 5 Genoa Street, Oakland, who are guests of the American Legion and whose fathers died during the war.

Madame Schumann-Heink will motor over to Oakland from San Francisco leaving on Thursday for San Jose where she sings another concert on Friday night. Next Sunday afternoon, she will sing Farewell to San Francisco at the Auditorium.

C. H. Purcell Appointed New State Highway Engineer

SACRAMENTO, February 13.—C. H. Purcell, newly appointed State Highway Engineer, is considered one of the foremost road engineers in the United States. He resided for a number of years in Los Angeles, attended Stanford University and later graduated from the University of California. He has had twenty-two years active experience in civil engineering. For the past fifteen years he has devoted himself exclusively to highway engineering, and for the past seven years has been connected with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, Washington, D. C., with assignment as District Engineer to the district comprising Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and Montana, with headquarters at Portland, prior to his connection with the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Mr. Purcell served as bridge engineer for the Columbia River Highway, bridge engineer for the Oregon State Highway Department, and principal assistant State Highway Engineer for the same department. An offer of appointment as State Highway Engineer of Oregon was declined by Mr. Purcell. Purcell's experience also includes railroad construction and development, both in North and South America. He is an associate member of the American Society of Engineers.

Commenting upon the appointment of Purcell, S. B. Meek, director of the Department of Public Works, said: "Mr. Purcell is one of the outstanding figures in highway engineering in the United States today. His experience both in railroad and highway work will be invaluable in the new period of location and construction activities into which the California highway system is now entering."

"For six months I have been making a close study of the Department of Public Works work as to its organization and work. The Department covers a very wide field of activities of vital concern to every community in California. I felt that an intimate knowledge of the organization and the work was necessary before changes were contemplated other than in personnel or policy. The highway budget announced last month has been the occasion of much study. Mr. Purcell in my opinion, will bring to the department an expert knowledge of road problems and highway methods that will be invaluable in the new era of road location and road building into which California has now entered."

Mr. Meek's announcement also included a statement that in accordance with legislative authorization, a Division of Contracts and Rights of Way for the Department of Public Works had been created with C. C. Carleton of Los Angeles, for many years attorney for the California Highway Commission, as its chief, and that the proposed creation of the Division of Water Resources to include the present Divisions of Engineering and Irrigation, and that of Water Rights, had been postponed until further legislative sanction to put its consolidation could be secured.

Tax Slash To Cause Deficit Charged By Congressman

By ARTHUR HACHTEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—A Treasury deficit is certain unless Congress cuts the brakes on appropriations, Rep. Martin Madden, chairman of the House Appropriations committee, warned in a speech in the House today.

His speech was followed by an attack by Rep. Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, ranking Democrat on the appropriations committee, on the "constructive economy" of the Coolidge administration.

Congress is being called upon to appropriate billions more than the federal revenues will allow, according to Madden. The treasury surplus for 1927, he said, is estimated at $252,000,000.

The tax reduction bill passed by the House, calling for a slash in revenues of $229,000,000, would cause a treasury deficit, even though Congress refused to appropriate for major projects now pending, he said.

He mentioned $100,000,000 for settlement of Alkali property cases, $25,000,000 for the public building program in Washington, D. C., public buildings throughout the country, and the housing program running into hundreds of millions, Mississippi River flood control requiring "at least" $450,000,000 spread over several years, Muscle Shoals and miscellaneous propositions.

The estimated treasury surplus does not take into consideration any of these items. Congress has been successful in recent years in holding down expenditures, but the outlook now is "dark," he said.

President Coolidge has dropped his "economy" slogan and is now talking "constructive economy," to explain increases in appropriations, Byrns said.

After quoting the words of Lincoln, "you can fool a part of the people all the time, but you cannot fool all the people all the time," Byrns said:

"It is about time the people were becoming aroused to the fact that despite the persistent and misleading propaganda of the past years there has been no reduction of government expenditures."

"On the contrary, there has been a heavy increase which cannot be justified on the plea that it is 'constructive economy.'"

"The total actual expenditures of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1924, the first year under President Coolidge, were $4,079,626,493. The estimated total expenditures for the year ending June 30, 1925, are $4,331,814,265, an increase of $252,187,791 in five years under the administration of President Coolidge."

"And do not overlook that the government is paying $220,000,000 less in 1928 in interest on the public debt than it did in 1924, and $7,000,000 less in pensions."

Heavy reduction in the public debt must be attributed as much to the preceding Wilson administration as to the present regime, according to Byrns, he presented figures showing that sales of surplus war materials, collection of back taxes dating into the Democratic administration and capital items bequeathed to the Republicans by the Democracy accounted for a large part of the money applied to debt reduction.

Byrns said $3,786,000,000 in capital items inherited by the Republicans from the Democratic administration should be remembered in appraising "Coolidge economy."

"Was it the 'constructive economy' which influenced the President to do something which had refused his three immediate predecessors had refused to do, when he urged Congress to purchase out of the treasury of the people the worthless and unsalable stock of

New York and other stockholders in the Cape Cod Canal off the coast of Massachusetts, at a cost of $11,500,000 and which ultimately will cost $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 to put in operation."

"Was it 'constructive economy' which induced his recommendation bridge across the Potomac river here in the District of Columbia exclusively out of Federal funds at a cost of $15,000,000 and which some have declared will cost many millions more before the structure and approaches are fully completed? This, too, his predecessors in office had refused to recommend."

a few days, will appeal the case to the Supreme Court of California, the appeal embodying an attack on the constitutionality of the insanity law. Should Hickman be found guilty of the Toms murder, it is likely that a similar course will be followed in that case.

Hickman's defense in the Toms case will be along insanity lines as in the Parker trial. It will be contended he was insane at the time Toms was killed. Much of the insanity evidence introduced in the Parker trial will again be brought forward.

CONFERRED

Hickman and Welby Hunt, 16, are co-defendants in the Toms case. Hickman has confessed participation in the holdup, but has denied firing the fatal shot.

This latter circumstance, even if borne out, would have no bearing on his fate. Under the law, the murder charge applies to all participants in such crimes.

Reports were current today that young Hunt would plead guilty, his counsel seeking leniency later on. Because of his age, Hunt is in no danger of the death penalty. His defense is said to feel that Hunt's chances in a trial would be considerably damaged by the fact that Hickman was a co-defendant.

Hunt has admitted being an accomplice of Hickman in the Toms holdup. He denied firing any shots.

STRINGERS WIN CITY CAGE LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

MALIKS AND MCRACKENS TIE SECOND PLACE

Fans predicted that the Stringer Smoke Shop quintet would win the Richmond basketball league championship and they did last night when the defeated McRackens by the close margin of one point. After the hotly contested game, which was the second on the program, the ten-man team and the manager, Paul Huston, were presented with gold basketballs by W. S. McRackens and a silver cup was presented by Stringer. The game was the most exciting seen on any Richmond court for many a month, and when the Stringers boys realize how close they came to losing their last game they cannot help but shudder.

First on the program last night was Ben Malik-Oleum Union Oil team game which kept the fans in an uproar during the whole session.

This finally added in a blaze of glory for the Cloisters when they shot four buckets in the extra five minutes required to determine which was the better team. As the score stood 26 to 18 in favor of the Malikis at the end of this period there was no doubt as to which was the better team. Bertonl was the high score man with 7 markers to his credit. At the end of the half, the game stood 9-8 in favor of Malikis, at the third quarter the Olimeans passed the local boys and held them 14-13 and at the end of the game 18-13. In the extra period Millicovich shot two baskets and Bertonl and Moskita each added one to make the total of

KeSmith Under Coogan's Bluff

"Why I could not do what Sparky Adams does to have my life," Hornaby said that.

He was talking about antics of the late St. Paul shooter who played second base one day; bobbed up at third a couple days later and next time you saw him he was playing baseball at short.

LOTTA utility players can do that, but Sparky doesn't merely fill in. He was star of the infield wherever he played.

Around 1920 Hornaby was a third baseman.

Wagner no part of second or short used to have to pay other spots, though just like Frankie Frisch was here one day and there another.

Quoting Hornaby in 1919: "My natural position is third base. Playing in at second throws me off stride."

BUT last summer he said "I better get off to Adams. I couldn't play anywhere but second base. I have played them all, but have been at second so long my arm is used to the distance."

STONEWALL JACKSON said Hornaby was "perfect double play combination because his throws were accurate. His arm moves just right without his having to bother about looking at Terry or me. He puts all his attention to playing the ball."

THAT'S WHY Hornaby marvels at Adams' Sparky's clock-work, double play man at either second or short. Rajah says if he played short he would be losing the ball on the ground to Terry, and on all sides of second base.

ADAMS shoots them straight to the star from second. "I'll be short on a minute's notice. In case you have not heard: Bill Terry is an inveterate cigar smoker."

AND Eddie Spean has a rabid yen for blood-curdling movies and plays. Attends every melodrama in town and man it if they don't shoot somebody on the stage.

GOOD TENNIS SHOWN SUNDAY

Matches held by the Richmond Tennis Club on the municipal courts in the "Round Robin Tournament" were featured by the playing of C. J. Peterson left-handed player who established himself No. 1 ranking player by defeating Dr. Ed. Fanning 4-1 and 4-2.

Other matches played on the same court resulted in the following scores:

H. L. Hunt defeated E. F. Martin, 6-2, 4-3, in a match in which Mr. Hunt was clearly the better player.

H. G. MacIntyre defeated Leroy Keshaw, 6-2, 6-2.

R. E. Radke defeated Louis Schmitts, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Wally Kruger defeated Henry Hill, 6-2, 6-4, 6-1. Hill has shown great improvement in his games and only the mere court experience and aggressiveness of Kruger accounted for his defeat.

Marvin Truitt defeated Lloyd Moore, 6-2, 6-2, in a match in which the closeness of the match, of the closeness of the match.

PULLMAN WINS FROM S. P. NINE

Real fast ball with an air-tight defense featured the game won by the Pullman company over the Southern Pacific team in Berkeley, by the score of 3 to 0.

Delucchi, pitched the entire game for the winners and had the hits so badly scattered that there was little evidence that there was such a thing as hits.

Barbieri was the outstanding man in the hot patch for the winners and Manager Paul Huston, gave evidence of himself in right field. His hit to left field brought in the winning run.

At El Cerrito Sunday the El Cerrito Merchants broke even by a win and a loss in the Triple A division of the Maxwell league. Guarantee Shoes was the team to make the honors from the Merchants by the score of 9 to 3 and then the Tenth Street Market took the short end of the game from the Merchants by the score of 13 to 3.

Sully pitched the winning game, which was attended by a large crowd.

SAN PABLO IN FIRST PLACE BY TWO WINS

First in the Double A division of the league by the margin of one-half game was the standing of the San Pablo Garage team by defeating the Richmond Carmen on the San Pablo lot 15 to 2 Sunday afternoon. The Garagemen won a game in the morning against the Vierra Billiards, without having to lift a bat for the boys from the pool hall could not get their team out for the contest.

As the Mechanics were on a batting spree, three pitchers were offered for the contest by the Carmen Pinto, O'Rourke and Freitas. Mainly on the other team stood the mound for the full nine innings and did creditable work in allowing only a minimum of hits and allowing them when they could be allowed.

At other times, or in pinches as this were to be had.

The other games in the league resulted in the New Process Laundry taking a beating from the Arcade Dansters, after they had won one contest from the Vierra Billiards by a forfeit.

Surprise of surprises was given when the Arcade Dansters, beat the Laundrymen after they had already won one game from the Carmen earlier in the day. As the Dansters are out of the running as far as league standing is concerned they were congratulated by their fellow players for putting over the win.

Winning of the Lawrence Terminals over their opponent put them in second place with the New Process Laundry. Both teams are tied for third position.

McRacken Cagers Beat Calif. Gym

McRackens basketball team took the University of California gym down the line in easy style by the score of 35-17. Glen Bowman and Bill Millicovich were the point getters for the cagers.

A fast past attack featured the game, and the shooting of Bowman who made fifteen points. The gym boys could not hit the bucket as easily as McRackens and were only able to score as many points as they did when the cagers fired from the fast game and showed the Californians to get through their defense for the points scored.

Here are the lineups of both teams:

McRackens 35—Bowman 15, Santella 5 and Gray 1; Millicovich 10; C. Baldwin, Wilson 2, and J. Baldwin 5, 5.

FLIGHT ENDS ONE YEAR TRIP OF AIR HERO

Charles A. Lindbergh, returning from an aerial conquest of the Atlantic.

The city will be given an opportunity to add its plaudits to those of the remainder of the world at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. The flyer will take off from Lambert, St. Louis field at 2:15 p. m. and will fly over St. Louis where house tops probably will be black with persons, and then, following the river's course, he will fly low, while the school children of the city, with small American flags, wave a welcome from the levee. The space between valentine and Pine streets, on the river front, has been reserved for the children and a cordon of police will protect them from encroachments of adults.

REVIEWING STAND
From Pine street north to the Bada bridge will be available to the public and a reviewing stand will be erected south of Pine street. As an additional safeguard, to the children, motor car parking will be prohibited in the vicinity while the reception is in progress. The children will go direct from their class rooms to the river front and constantly will be under the supervision of their teachers. Arrangements have been made with the St. Louis Public Service Company, to furnish street car transportation for 40,000 children. It is estimated that 100,000 children will line the levee front.

The Public Service Company announced today that the movement of street cars tomorrow to carry the children to the levee for the celebration is the largest ever attempted in the city.

GOETED BY "BUDDY"
Captain Phil Love, formerly Lindbergh's buddy and who flew the Chicago-St. Louis air mail with him first then accompanied him as official representative of the United States Department of Commerce, was among the first to greet Lindbergh this afternoon.

Love will fly in Colonel Lindbergh's escort when the latter returns to the air mail for two days February 20 and 21 and flies the mail again over the route that was originally mapped out by him. Colonel John A. Paegelow, commandant of Scott Field, announced that five army dirigibles will hover over the river during the aerial spectacle. Frank H. Robertson, president of the Robertson Aircraft Company, air mail contract holder, today announced a heavy consignment of mail to be flown by Colonel Lindbergh on his trip over the Rouge next Monday. Included in the consignment will be a letter from Governor Baker to Governor Small of Illinois, and communications from St. Louisans to acquaintances in all parts of the world.

Colonel Lindbergh's next appearance after his flight over the city tomorrow will be as guest of honor at a testimonial luncheon by the Chamber of Commerce at noon Wednesday.

PLANE "JUST AS GOOD"
ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—The Flying Colonel told W. F. Mahoney, maker of his plane, that in his opinion the Spirit of St. Louis was just as good as the day it made its first flight and that the same old engine which has covered approximately forty-two thousand six hundred miles, functions as well as ever.

Outside of meeting a few friends at the home of Harry H. Knight tonight Lindbergh remained in seclusion.

May Die Seeking Beauty

SHAMED by bowlegs, Sadie Holland, Chicago stenographer, appealed to Dr. Henry Schireson, plastic surgeon, whose scalpel remodeled the nose of Fanny Brice and the legs of Paulette Goddard. When the girl was removed to another hospital, according to Dr. Schireson, gangrene set in. Finally, despairing of her life, physicians of the second hospital amputated both of the girl's limbs. If she recovers, Sadie must spend the rest of her life in a wheel chair.

California Since Pioneer Days In New Books Here

Six of the newer non-fiction books have been received and placed in the files of the Richmond Public Library, according to an announcement made yesterday by Miss Nora McNell, librarian. They are:

"MY SEVENTY YEARS IN CALIFORNIA"—Is an account of life in California from 1857 to 1927 by Jackson A. Graves, of Los Angeles who came to California as a child of five and spent his younger years at Marysville and in San Francisco where he went to school and studied law. Mr. Graves has many interesting things to tell of his early life as a young man and of his later years in Los Angeles as lawyer and banker.

"THE AMERICAN SONGBOOK"—Is a collection of American songs of other days which have been gathered by Carl Sangburg who has collected them from many sources. The "American Songbook" is more inclusive than "Read 'em and Weep" though the songs are probably not so generally known.

"CHINA: A NATION IN EVOLUTION"—Has been written by Dr. Paul Monroe for the average American who wants to understand the situation in China but who finds himself confused by the strangeness of names and the contradictory character of the news. Dr. Monroe knows China and is known by the Chinese, having made his first visit to them at the invitation of the educational authorities in 1913.

"THE BOOK OF THE AEROPLANE"—By Pritchard will interest the flying fans of which there are so many these days. It traces the history of Irving, and tells of famous flights, races and records and the great airways of the world and then explains something about the various types of engines and the mechanics of flight.

"THE SILENT FORCE"—A cornered highwayman once said to a squad of the Mounted Police of Canada, "Boys, you may think it funny coming from me, but I certainly have to admire the way you work." And the way they work and have worked from their organization in 183 until today is the story that Mr. Longstreet tells in this book which he calls scenes from the life of the Mounted Police of Canada. The book is full of anecdote and makes good reading for those who like action and tales of frontier days.

"WHAT'S WRONG WITH AMERICAN EDUCATION?"—Dr. David Snedden of Columbia University has written his book with two types of readers in mind: the educators who shape the policies of our schools and the layman who criticizes them. Dr. Snedden believes that American education has centered its attention on teaching methods rather than on the fundamental problem of educational policies. His analysis covers the whole system from kindergarten to university.

"STARS AND ATOMS"—In telling of the star Algor, the famous of variable stars, Professor Eddington says, "This is a detective story which we might call 'The missing word and the false clue.' And quite as thrilling and breath-taking as any mystery story are the things the astronomers of today can tell us about the heavenly bodies. Writing as simply as possibly he tells something of the interior of the star, the age of the stars, and the results of recent investigations in the matter of individual stars, the cloud in space, the sun's chromosphere etc. The book is a brief one of only one hundred and twenty seven pages, attractively printed in clear readable type and contains eleven full plate illustrations.

"THE SMALLER AMERICAN HOUSE"—Fifty-five houses of the less expensive type selected from the recent work of architects in all parts of the country, with plans and details illustrations, by Ethel Power, the editor of "House Beautiful."

"DISRAELI"—A biography of one of the outstanding figures of the Victorian age, Lord Beaconsfield, by Andre Maurois.

"HAPPINESS"—A brief little essay by William Lyon Phelps who believes that the happiness people are those who think the most interesting thoughts.

RESERVOIR TO SUPPLY WATER TO SAC VALLEY

B. Meek, director of public works and State Engineer Edward Hyatt Jr., includes a finding of a number of co-operating engineering authorities, chief among them being former State Engineer Paul Bailey.

420 FEET IN HEIGHT
An initial height of 420 feet is mentioned for the Kemmett dam, the bulletin declaring this would provide a reservoir capacity of 2,940,000 acre feet in serving irrigation and power needs. A power plant of 400,000 kilowatt amperes of electrical energy, it was said, could be constructed below the dam.

The grand total cost of the Kemmett dam reservoir power plant, after dam and incidental construction, was estimated in the report as $80,000,000. The dam and reservoir with necessary incidental work was placed at $55,020,000.

Youths And Negroes Blamed For Crime Wave In Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Negroes and juvenile white lawbreakers are to blame for the majority of the crimes committed in Chicago, Edward E. Gore, former President of the Chicago Crime Commission, told the Junior Association of Commerce here today.

"I am not criticizing the negro," he said, "I am merely stating facts. We should be ready to help the negroes overcome the conditions which lead them to crime. This can best be done through education by their own people. The trouble here is that the negro criminals lack respect for members of their race who have advanced."

Mr. Gore pointed out that of the complaints made before the Grand Jury in 1927, 40 per cent were of crimes by negroes, mostly of the more serious kind, 50 per cent by offenders less than 22 years old, and 10 per cent by white adults.

LINDY DENIES BEING OFFERED WILSON PRIZE

HAVANA, Feb. 13.—Those who have the power to award the $25,000 Woodrow Wilson prize may wish to give it to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, premier air hero, but he has not heard any thing about it, according to his positive statement to the Universal Service just before leaving for St. Louis early this morning.

"This is the first I have heard about any such offer," he said. He was told that a Newark newspaper printed a story Sunday saying that he had been offered the prize and refused to take it. He was also informed that the logical conclusion from the public point of view, provided he had refused the prize, would be that he still remembered the hostility attitude of his Congressman father toward former President Wilson.

"It is all news to me," he answered to every statement and question. "You may say positively that I have heard nothing about such an offer until now."

When asked what his attitude would be if the prize should be offered him, Colonel Lindbergh smiled and took refuge behind his custom of saying nothing about his personal feelings. "I cannot
